

Teignbridge, in partnership with Exeter and East Devon Councils, is a member of the South East Devon Habitat Regulations Executive Committee (SEDHREC), which was set up to help protect key conservation sites at Dawlish Warren, the Exe Estuary and East Devon's Pebblebed Heaths.

The three authorities are working together to provide safe areas for all users to enjoy and to care for the wildlife they support, by ensuring that any increasing recreational pressures from new housing are addressed. Dawlish Countryside Park was purchased with money from developers of new housing across the three council areas and authorised by SEDHREC.

Welcome to Dawlish Countryside Park

These spacious acres, for centuries farmed to feed us, are now yours to explore and enjoy.

If you have an hour to spare why not follow the Red Route right round taking in the panoramic views from the Ridge Path, the Island Viewpoint and The Lookout.

For a shorter stroll why not follow one of the Mellow Yellow loops past the Bird Feeding Station to the Coffee Curve seat with sea views

...or make your own route around the many meadow paths - there's room to run and room to roam.

Birdsong and barley fields

Enjoy a real country walk with our classic farmland birds for company. Skylarks singing joyfully high overhead - and our real Devon celebrities, the bandit masked Cirl Bunting (pronounced sirl) making their subtle rattle. They were once called the Village Bunting because of their close ties to us.

Male Cirl Bunting

Patches will still be farmed for Barley to support these special and long standing country companions..

As their name suggests tiny Harvest Mice like fields of corn, we've added a few to the countryside furniture - see if you can spot them!

Marbled White butterfly, (it scatter bombs its eggs!).

Marvellous meadows

Grassland will be managed as hay meadows packed with colourful wildflowers and bustling with butterflies, with mown paths for exploring and shorter strips for throwing a ball.
